ENGINEERING AND BUILDING

TUNNEL UNDER RIVER HOOGHLY

TASK OF UNEXPECTED DIFFICULTY

TO FACILITATE CALCUTTA'S
ELECTRIC SUPPLY

To meet the demands for electric energy on the right bank of the River Hooghly, the Calcutta Electric Supply Corporation decided, on the advice of their Consulting Engineer, Sir H. H. Dalrymple Hay, M. Inst. C. E., to build a tunnel under the river for the accommodation of the supply cables. This work was carried out between the Southern Generating Station and the Botanical Garden, at a level below the lowest scour known from long records, which was 62.00 O.D. Trial borings indicated that a bed of good clay existed at about that depth, and that overlying it were water-bearing beds of sand and silt.

It was decided to sink shafts on each side of the river and to drive a tunnel through the clay from the shaft on the left bank under compressed air. Special preparations were considered to be advisable for the safe prosecution of work under high air-pressures (expected to reach 45 lb. per square inch), the nature of which was quite novel to Indian labour. The shafts were constructed under a fixed air deck by underpinning cast-iron lining, and a number of difficulties occurred in carrying out this method of procedure. At the right bank shaft the strata pierced proved to be so fluid that little or no support was afforded to the lining, and when excavation reached a depth of about 63 ft. below ground surface a circumferential fracture of the cast-iron lining took place, and a length of more than 28 ft. of the lining dropped, leaving a gap of eventually about 1 ft. 9 in. at the fracture.

An Odd Phenomenon.

The tunnel was driven under cover of a hooded shield, and although the operations embodied no novel methods, they are of interest as being the first application of the system by Indian labourers, who had to be trained to the manipulation of a shield under air-pressure which reached at times more than 40 lb. per square inch. This particular shield when in the clay showed an unexpected tendency to veer towards the crown, contrary to all past experience in driving similar shields through water-bearing strata; and the reasons for this have been considered. An explanation—not wholly satisfactory, it is admitted—is put forward, which accounts for the observed deviation as being due to the internal air-pressure acting against the overhanging hood of the shield—conditions which could only obtain if the pressures outside and inside the hood skin were not in equilibrium; as might conceivably be the case when the cutting edge was plunging into clay impermeable to air-pressure from the tunnel face. The connection of the tunnel with the right-bank shaft had to be carried out by Europeans, the stemming of intrusions of wet sand demanding all their resources of experience and determination. The caulking of the joints in the shaft and tunnel lining was done with lead wire. It was intended to use rust-joining, but owing to an unfortunate accident the employment of the latter was abandoned, it having been proved that a breakage of the steel hoisting-cable in the shaft was due to the corrosive effect of sal ammoniac, which had been driven into the strands by repeated immersion in compressed air. The grouting of the interstices behind the linings with cement and with lime, and the advantage of the latter in lessening the temperature-rise after each grouting operation, is described in some detail.

Careful Medical Supervision.

Caisson-disease was more prevalent at the right-bank shaft-sinking and during periods of excessive humidity. From the marked decrease in the output of labour during such periods, the conclusion is drawn that dehydration of the compressed air supply might have been advantageous. During the execution of the tunnel, tests were made of the CO content of the air, and although the percentage was high, it was judged by the medical authorities to be insufficient to cause any ill-effects.—Mr. C. M. Norris in Engineering

A WATER GRID And Electric Rail for Suburbs

ENGINEER'S SCHEMES

The establishment of a "water grid," on the lines of the electrical grid now nearing completion, and the electrification of suburban railway lines were put forward as means of alleviating the industrial depression by speakers at the annual dinner of the Institution of Electrical Engineers, held at the Midland Hotel, Manchester.

Mr. A. E. L. Chorlton, M.P. for the Miles Platting Division of Manchester, proposing the toast of the institution, said: "A man scarcely dare speak to-day unless he is an economist, intent on cutting down expenditure, but I do not believe that this is the right way of looking at things. I believe that this is the time for undertaking large public works. I do not mean the building of multitudinous roads, which is a plan devised by amateur, not engineers, but I believe there are schemes depending on engineers that could be put into force. They would bring about that stirring of the heart of things from which would grow the other trade we depend upon."

Making Good Progress.

As an instance of such a scheme Mr. Chorlton mentioned his plan for a "water grid," emulating the electric grid, and aiming at organising the distribution of water on unified national lines. "This scheme has not been received with anything but the quietness of death by this city," he went on, "but, nevertheless, it is making good progress. You have at present the odd position that Manchester has had to shut down the great Haweswater scheme and has a surplus of water from Thirlmere, while Hull is going in for a water scheme that will cost £1,500,000. Any engineer would say, 'Why not connect the two?' There are districts in North Lincolnshire that are calling for water. Many areas in the East of England have a water supply that is suspect, being drawn from surface sources near drains. I do not want to give a prejudicial account of their water supply, but surely there is everything to be gained by

BIG BEN'S BIG BROTHER MINUTE HAND A 17 FT. GIRDER.

A remarkable clock just erected for the proprietors of Bile Beans on the Grand Buildings, Trafalgar Square, London, is claimed to be the largest in the British Empire. Its face is 750 sq. ft. in size, whilst Big Ben is only a little over 400 sq. ft. The minute hand is really a huge girder 17 ft. long. The clock, which is illuminated day and night by neon, flashes out the following two messages: "Take Bile Beans at Bed Time" and "Take Bile Beans to Keep Fit." The size of the largest letter is 8 ft. 9 ins., the smallest being 2 ft. 6 ins. Nearly 800 ft. of neon tubing was used in making the letters, and the electrical connection required 99½ miles of wiring.

The clock mechanism is contained in a box only 3 ft. wide, 1 ft. from back to front and 18 ins. high. The clock, synchronised with Greenwich, never requires winding, being worked directly by electricity, and Londoners now set their own watches by it. Over 14 tons of steel were used in the construction of this tremendous timepiece.

a unified scheme?"

Plea for Railways
Professor E. W. Marchant, president of the institution, in reply, referred to the damage done to the roads by heavy lorries and motor vehicles, which provided a disproportionately small amount of revenue for their upkeep, and asked, "Is it not time that the railways were made better use of?"

"I am not going to suggest main-line electrification at this stage," he continued, "but there are several of our suburban lines that are crying out for electrification." The grid had created a considerable demand for heavy electrical installations, but this was now coming to an end. A restricted slump in heavy electrical machinery was likely. The electrification of suburban lines might help to obviate this. Further, money was now cheap, and if they were to ask the Minister of Transport that a Government-guaranteed loan might be raised for the project there would be little or no chance that the Government would ever be called upon to meet the guarantee. Such projects would undoubtedly be remunerative.

The toast of the "Cities and trades of Manchester and Salford" was proposed by Sir Holberry Menzforth, and the Lord Mayor of Manchester (Alderman W. Walker) replied. In the absence of Mr. G. F. Sills, owing to illness, Mr. G. G. L. Preece presided.

PETROL FROM COAL

MINING ENGINEER ON DRAWBACKS.

The possibilities of obtaining Britain's supply of petrol from British coal were discussed by Mr. John Brace, president of the Institution of Mining Engineers, at its annual meeting at Westminster.

He said that we imported 1,000,000,000 gallons of petrol per annum, and, at first glance, it appeared obvious that we should obtain this from our own coal, but on closer examination it was not easy to determine whether the benefits to be derived from the hydrogenation of coal outweighed the drawbacks.

To obtain 1,000,000,000 gallons of petrol 13,000,000 tons of coal would be required, and £142,000,000 would have to be spent to provide the necessary plant. On this basis, permanent employment would be provided for 104,000 hands, of whom nearly 65,000 would be employed in and about the mines.

Workers Thrown Out.

Considerable unemployment would, however, be created among British seamen, dock workers, shipyard workers, and all those connected with the shipping of oil, if all our petrol were to be obtained by the hydrogenation process. The loss in revenue to the Government would amount to £23,000,000 per annum at the present rate of taxation, of £217 per annum for each person for whom employment was found.

"Apart from the reduction of revenue to the Government, unless the petrol tax is maintained at a comparatively high level, definite and perhaps serious losses will be incurred," Mr. Brace said.

CHINA'S BUILDING AT CHICAGO.

PAGODA TOWER AND THREE HALLS.

The final design of the Chinese building to be erected at the Century of Progress Exposition to be held in Chicago next summer, has now been released by the China Commission International Exposition representing the Ministry of Industry.

The first design of the Chinese building, which had been drawn up by the Society of Chinese Architects and given the approval of the China Commission, was completed in October. A few days after the design had been completed a cable was received from Chicago notifying the China Commission that due to certain last-minute alterations which had to be made concerning the exposition grounds on the shores of the Lake Michigan, the Chinese grounds would have to be changed slightly.

This announcement upset the early plans of the China Commission. It also meant that a new design would have to be made in order to fit the new requirements. However, under the revised plan of the executive committee in Chicago, China was allotted considerably more space than the earlier site called for.

The Society of Chinese Architects was immediately asked by the China Commission to draw up new plans for the Chinese building. The new design has been accepted and approved by the China Commission.

The Chinese Government Section will cover 8,000 feet of floor space. The main building, with the pagoda-like tower at the entrance will contain three large halls. Each hall will house one division of the three branches of exhibits, namely, industrial, scientific, and cultural. The centre of the Chinese building

WATERLOO BRIDGE

RECONDITIONING OF NEW STRUCTURE?

The British Government have come to a decision on the now ancient controversy of Waterloo Bridge, and have notified the appropriate Committee of the L.C.C. that the structure is not to be rebuilt but reconditioned. It is to be presumed that the Council will accept the ruling of the Ministry of Transport, which is recommended by the pro- to contribute 60 per cent. of the cost. Furthermore, no other scheme is feasible in present circumstances, and the only alternative to reconditioning is to leave things as they are, which would be both inconvenient and risky. Ministerial suggestion that the bridge should be "corbelled out," so as to carry four lines of traffic, suggests to the eye of imagination a grotesque departure from the Roman lines of Rennie's design.

That question, however, is to be referred to the Royal Fine Arts Commission, in whose hands we may be content to leave it, but with the lingering doubt whether to double the lines of traffic will not also double, instead of relieve, the congestion. The cost of the work is estimated at £835,000, which is something very much less than the expense of a new bridge, and that, to be sure, is a consideration in these hard times. Whether the subsidence is the result of an ancient ravine in the river bed, or some other cause, to make it good can hardly be beyond the power of modern engineering. The real conflict is between those who love new things and those who love old. Both points of view have their merits, but for ourselves we may confess that, having looked so long upon the old bridge, we should be sorry to see it go.—London Morning Post.

WHAMPOA DOCK DEVELOPMENT

Commander Cheung Chi Ying of the Canton naval forces of the 1st Group Army is taking steps for the reopening of the former Whampoa Dockyard, which he hopes to develop into an extensive ship-building yard. The services of a German expert are being procured for the project, which it is hoped is to be financed jointly by the 1st Group Army and the Provincial Government.

The engagement is announced of Mr. Edward McLaren to Miss Joan Bidwell of Tientsin. Mr. McLaren is a resident of Taikoo House. He intends going to Hankow, where the marriage will be held.

The Scottish Law

FOUNDATIONS OF ITS SUCCESS

EMMINENT LAWYERS ON THEIR PROFESSION

(Special Air-Mail Service)

Edinburgh, Feb. 3.

Mr. Arthur P. Duffes, K.C., speaking last night at the annual dinner of the Glasgow University Law Society, observed that it was the common sense of the Scottish system of law which had often saved even the law of England from extraordinary absurdities.

The achievements of the Scottish Bench and Bar during the past 40 years were referred to at the annual dinner of the Glasgow University Law Society, which was held in the University Union.

Development of Law Faculty.

Principal Sir Robert S. Rait, said that the University had a great tradition in law. Speaking as a layman, he was informed that Glasgow University produced the first Lord Stair, the greatest of all Scottish lawyers. Although the founding of the Faculty of Law was coeval with the founding of the University, the Faculty did not at first develop. The pious benefactor then gave benefactions to the Faculty of Arts, but he thought the lawyers could look after themselves, and he made no benefaction to the Faculty of Law. The result was that in the early days of the University there was only a rudimentary Faculty of Law, and it was not until about the time of Stair that the University set forth in the distinguished career in the real of law which produced not only Lord Stair but a thinker like Professor Miller, whose books were still remembered.

Judges and Work.

Lord Hunter, responding to the toast of "The Bench" which was proposed by Professor W. M. Gloag, K.C., recalled that Professor Gloag and he joined the Faculty of Advocates on the same day. He (the speaker) now found himself a bachelor judge in the anomalous position of being father of the Scottish Bench. There was a great deal of discussion going on as to whether Judges were overworked or underworked, but he was not going to enter into that controversy. So far as work was concerned, it was perfectly true that most of their time was taken up in explaining Acts that had been passed.

He happened to notice the other day that in one of the Greek Republics there was a law passed to the effect that any legislator proposing a new law should go into the market place with a halter round his neck and anyone objecting to the legislation proposed to be passed should have the right to pull the halter. (Laughter.)

Continuing, Lord Hunter said he did not propose to say whether it was advisable or inadvisable to have a great number of appeals. The Judges maintained their numbers, he added, and the numbers of Judges of the Court of Session were not to be diminished in spite of what was reported in the newspaper.

Tradition of Fairness.

Professor John Girvan, proposing the toast of "The Bar," said that in view of the multifarious legislative measures which were being passed at present it was very essential there should be a strong Bar and a strong Bench. Scotland had been blessed with a strong Bar, and it was still the most influential body in the country. Ever since the Union of the Crowns and the Union of Parliaments the Bar in Scotland had been the chief centre of Scottish national life. Parliament House had been the reflection of the thoughts and aspirations of the country.

Practically all the great men in Scotland for the past 300 or 400 years—in literature and art, as well as law—had been connected with the Bar. The Bar still carried on its traditions of fairness and impartiality, and retained the gifts of learning, but nowadays the members would appear to confine themselves more or less to their vocation itself.

English Bachelor Judges.

Mr. Arthur P. Duffes, K.C., responding, humorously observed that in England there was a surprising large number of bachelor Judges who were constantly telling what they knew about ladies' hats, or how to manage a wife. (Laughter.) On the Bench in Scotland they had had an extraordinary variety among bachelor Judges telling counsel what they knew of ladies' hats, or having the presumption to tell married members of the Bar how to manage a wife. Our bachelor Judges, Mr. Duffes said amidst laughter, expect us to know that.

Commonsense Foundation.

In the 400 years and more of the history of the Scottish Bar and Bench, Mr. Duffes said, they had great men from time to time. They must have been great men, or they would not have given Scotland the greatest system of law and procedure the world had ever known. There was criticism of procedure from time to time but, in his opinion, it was mostly conceived in ignorance and was usually still-born. (Applause.)

He considered there were two foundations of the greatness of their system. Their law was based on common sense, and, secondly, they were devoted to what might be called the system of relevancy. It was the common sense of the Scottish system which had often saved even the law of England from extraordinary absurdities.

HYPNOTISM BY TELEPHONE!

DOCTOR'S POWER OVER A PATIENT

Hypnotism by telephone was of Harley-street and Westminster Hospital, in a lecture to the boys mentioned by Dr. Hildred Carlill, of Dulwich College.

"I have a patient," he said, "who has had to be hypnotised so many times and has come so many times under my sway, that he will do anything I tell him. The man has become so saturated with my dominance and so easily amenable to my suggestions, that there is no need for him to be in the room."

"If he were in Paris, and I telephoned to him, he would do exactly as I told him," he would not even stop at crime. "Hypnotic power is a thing of vast magnitude," he said. "If you are wise you will not lightly allow yourselves to be the subject of hypnotism. It is not worth it. It is a terrible business and should be left entirely in the hands of physicians."

CANTON RIVER RUNNING DRY

The Conservancy Board at Canton has sent several engineers to inspect stretches of the West river near Fashan and Chen Chuen with a view to ascertaining whether dredging operations are necessary. The Canton river and its tributaries have become shallow and, in certain sections, the water is not deep enough for navigation. Arrangements will be made to dredge stretches of shallow for navigation at low tide. Incoming and outgoing steamers now find it necessary to navigate the river at high tide in order to avoid being stranded.

"THE RED HEADED WOMAN"

WHERE JEAN HARLOW ESCAPES FROM ONE-TYPE PARTS

For a screen star with ambitions, success can in reality be failure. That is the opinion of Jean Harlow, the platinum blonde who became a red-head to play the title role in "Red Headed Woman," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's screen version of the Katharine Brush novel, which opens to-morrow at the Queen's.

"I wanted to be something more than a platinum blonde," says Miss Harlow. "I wanted to prove my worth as a dramatic actress. That is why I risked the success I had already gained and took on a new personality for this picture."

"Once you establish yourself as a type, it is so easy to go on and make a success as that type. Producers encourage you to take this line of least resistance. They know that the public likes familiar faces."

Spurned Friends' Advice.

"But I have never been satisfied with that sort of success. I want to play dramatic roles, the kind that require characterization. That is why I leaped at the chance to play the 'Red Headed Woman' when certain well-meaning friends thought I should 'let well enough alone.'"

"It is the most difficult role I have attempted. Lil Andrews, in the story, is a girl who knows no law but her own will. Starting as a lowly stenographer, she fights schemes and struggles to win recognition from the social world to which she belongs. In other words, she is ambitious. So am I."

Miss Harlow found the business of transforming herself into a red head to be an arduous task. It required her to get up at 5.30 every morning instead of the usual 7 o'clock. The red-headed personality involved a new type of make-up which meant more time than usual spent on this.

Portraying the title role meant more frequent appearances in the story, which in turn entailed more (Continued on Previous Page)

"CHANDU THE MAGICIAN"

IRENE WARE'S FANTASTIC COSTUMES

Irene Ware, the lovely princess of "Chandu The Magician," now showing at the King's Theatre, wears some of the most fantastic costumes ever seen on the screen. Nevertheless, two of them at least are easily adaptable for wear in one's wardrobe.

One, in particular a white crepe, trimmed with silver bugle beads, could easily be modified to create a stunning dress for dinner-dance wear. An over a slip of pale pink silk crepe. These and all other gowns worn by Miss Ware were designed by Earl Luick and created in the Fox Films wardrobe department at Hollywood.

Miss Ware is a newcomer to the screen and is a noted beauty, formerly of the stage. She is five feet, six inches tall, weighs 115 pounds, has auburn hair and rather greenish eyes. She is graceful and wears cloths with distinction. Edmund Lowe plays the title role in the production and others, well known here, are Bela Lugosi, Henry B. Walthall, Herbert Mundin, Weldon Heyburn and Virginia Hammond. Little June Vlack, blonde and beautiful, is also making her screen debut in Chandu.

POWELL'S LONG FIGHT TO STARDOM

SUCCESS IN FILM NOW AT QUEEN'S

William Powell, now drawing delighted crowds to the Queen's Theatre, where he is appearing in "High Pressure," his second Warner Bros. and Vitaphone starring vehicle, reached the top only after long years of hard work and harder knocks.

It was the praise he received for his portrayal of Jack, Absolute in an amateur production of "The Rivals" at Central High School in St. Louis, Missouri, that decided him to be an actor. His parents objected but the lad worked as a telephone messenger and a theatre usher and saved with the idea of entering the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in New York. Feeling that his wad was growing too slowly he communicated with a rich aunt, who gave him half of what he asked to borrow, and he beat it for the Big Town.

After a term at the Academy his money was gone and he took a temporary job while scouting for a part. His first was in "Ne'er Do Well" at forty dollars per week. When the play closed he was again on his uppers till "Within The Law" kept him busy for two years. Next he was seen with Leo Dietrichstein in two plays—and in his first outstanding success, (Continued on next Column)

"THE BLUE DANUBE"

DELIGHTFUL SCENIC EFFECTS

The scenic beauties of "The Blue Danube" are a real delight. As befits a story of gipsy love, much of the action takes place in woodland scenes, some at dusk when the skillful lighting effects add to the ethereal beauty of the localities. It is here, too, that the haunting melodies played by Alfred Rode's Tzigane band are so wonderfully effective. "The Blue Danube" is a musical and dramatic production of rare charm.

"Spanish Love"

His entry into pictures came with his portrayal of the villain in "Sherlock Holmes" with John Barrymore. "When Knighthood Was In Flower," "The Bright Shawl" and "Romola" followed, and three years in stock, with films as a side line. It was the talkies, Powell says, that made him a star, for he was permitted to depart slightly from the sinister roles in which he had been cast, when producers heard his voice. He is grand as the blue sky stock promoter in "High Pressure." Evelyn Brent, Evelyn Knapp, Guy Kibbee, John Wray and many others are in the cast. Mervyn Le Roy directed.

"SHERLOCK HOLMES"

OLD FAVOURITE HOLDS HIS OWN

Detectives may come and detectives may go, but "Sherlock Holmes" apparently goes on forever. Despite the success of some of Holmes' more recent imitators, the great figure of Conan Doyle's imagination continues to hold his place against all comers in the heart of the reading public.

The hand of any public library will verify this assertion and will add that there is a steady demand for Doyle's stories that depict the thrilling adventures of the drama sleuth.

A new "Sherlock Holmes" comes to the King's Theatre on Sunday with Clive Brook in the title role and Miriam Jordan portraying the leading feminine role. Miss Jordan is from the English stage and recently won wide acclaim for her performance in "Cymbeline" on Broadway. She is now under contract to Fox Films and made her screen debut in "Six Hours To Live," opposite Warner Baxter and John Boles.

The role of "Moriarty," the arch enemy of Holmes, is enacted by Ernest Torrence. Others in the strong cast are Alan Mowbray, Montague Shaw, Arnold Lucy, Howard Leeds, Lucien Prival, Roy D'Arcy, Stanley Fields, Brandon Hurst, Eddie Dillion and Robert Graves.

The picture was directed by William K. Howard who transferred to the screen such outstanding successes as "Transatlantic" and "The First Year."

MANSON: THE FATHER OF TROPICAL MEDICINE

PROF. GERRARD'S REVIEW
OF HIS H. K. WORK

THE SCIENTIST WHO HAS MADE THE TROPICS HEALTHY

THE DEBT THAT HONG KONG, AND ALL WHO LIVE IN THE TROPICS, OWES TO PATRICK MANSON, THE FOUNDER OF MODERN TROPICAL MEDICINE, WAS OUTLINED BY PROFESSOR W. I. GERRARD IN A LECTURE LAST NIGHT AT THE MEDICAL SCHOOL OF THE UNIVERSITY.

Man's activities ranged from stimulating medical education in the Far East, to assisting in founding the Dairy Farm, from rediscovering from a Chinese medicine—dried liver of carion crow—the liver diet treatment of anaemia to the greatest of all his achievements, the tracing of malaria to certain heads of mosquito.

FRIENDSHIP WITH DR. SUN YAT SEN

Ladies and Gentlemen:

This evening I make no apologies for the title of my paper. We are on the eve of the 21st birthday of this University and Manson was really the founder of our School of Medicine without which I venture to suggest there would have been no University of Hong Kong.

Manson was born in Scotland in 1844. Neither at School nor University did he win any prizes. He was evidently above the common run however because we find him, when quite young, deeply interested in a tapeworm he found while investigating the internal parts of a dead cat. Soon after graduating he left England and came to Formosa where he was Medical Officer to the Chinese Imperial Customs Service then under Sir Robert Hart who recruited most of his medical officers from Scotland. On his way out to the Far East Manson visited Madagascar and there first came in contact with indigenous tropical disease. In Hospital there he saw cases suffering from cardiac disease one day and was astonished to see these same cases up and about the next day—they were, we now know, cases of Beri Beri.

Mission Hospital at Amoy.

Manson left Formosa after a stay of 5 years and then moved to Amoy in 1871 where he remained for several years. He worked in a Mission Hospital there and in these early days of his career one finds evidence of his initiative and great ambition to extend facilities for medical education. Manson was honest and outspoken, qualities not appreciated by some of the Community in Amoy and as a result he soon came up against a type of individual who made trouble that threatened to wreck his scheme of medical education.

In face of all difficulties in Amoy Manson's pupils did succeed and settle down in different parts of the country in spite of the grievances of Manson's enemies: as Manson had intended his pupils spread what had been taught them.

We know that Manson's benign sympathy in his work must have resulted in very great spiritual influence. He possessed in the fullest degree one of the great qualities necessary for the successful doctor, namely a love of humanity.

I would ask you to picture the young scientists struggling onwards in Amoy—cut off from all incentives that incline the ordinary man to pursue original work. There were no libraries for reference, no museums, no scientific meetings and no association with eminent colleagues. In these days you can well realise Manson's difficult position, certainly discouraging to any ordinary mortal. He had none of the enormous facilities of present times. He was isolated and thrown upon his own resources. Can you doubt that he possessed a high degree of mental calibre to have overcome all obstacles so thoroughly?

In and around Amoy his fame soon spread. In face of great difficulties he performed the successful operation, for removal of a stone from the urinary bladder and his fame became more widespread as his successful operations for relieving the condition of elephantiasis bore witness to his skill.

Chinese Patients.

Manson stated that his Chinese patients were very grateful but he relates the story of one who had bladder stones. This patient had about $3,000 and when it was hinted that he might give a small donation to the hospital in recognition of his cure of a very painful condition the patient took a week to decide. He then told Manson that he had decided to give the vast and generous sum of $1.

In those days as even now in many parts it was extremely difficult to carry on Western Medicine. Mistrust of Surgery was more easily overcome but medicine produced no theatrical results for the benefit of the ignorant. Manson's views on this question are best expressed as follows: "Since most people recover from ordinary sickness without treatment or even in spite of treatment whether by Western or Chinese Medicine the Chinese can point to plenty of cures as attributable to his own native medicines and methods. He therefore sees no reason for giving up the old familiar ways in which he has faith for something new and strange. He is prudently conservative. In this matter and is worthy of respect on that account." To diverge for a moment let me remind you that although veneration of the dead prevented such things as dissection and post-mortem examination, the Chinese knew a great deal about medicine. A striking instance of this was brought to light some years ago by a doctor in Australia. A Chinese patient was proved to be suffering from Pernicious Anaemia and was dying. The patient told the doctor he wanted other advice and returned to China. Two years later the doctor was astounded to have a visit from his former patient. The patient looked so well that the doctor failed to recognise him. He enquired where the patient had been and he said he had been under the care of an old Chinese Doctor who gave him some black powders to take. The patient brought some along and on examination the powders were found to be the dried liver of the carion crow. After a long lapse of years once again the rediscovery of a remedy and in liver was found a cure for this disease.

Cause of Elephantiasis.

The result of Manson reading of Lewis' discovery of the Filaria sanguinis hominis was that he worked night and day until he proved that the Filaria was the cause of elephantiasis. In his research Manson had the help of two Chinese assistants and he noticed that the one who worked in the hospital wards late at night brought him blood films which contained the microscopic filaria.

Manson, ever of an enquiring turn of mind, conceived the idea that this might be due to the entry of the filaria into the blood stream at night time only. This line of thought was pursued and it was shown that the filaria did appear in the blood at night time only but disappeared completely during hours of daylight. Manson now argued that some agent must be necessary for the transference of the filaria embryos in the blood from one human being to another. It must be a winged agent—something that fed on human blood and that at night time only. What other could it be, than a mosquito and as you know such proved to be the case.

Manson introduced a special trocar for dealing with abscess of the liver and Manson's trocar is still used in some places where no skilled assistance is available.

To show that Manson was ingenious look at how he endeavoured to culture the minute rod-like bodies he saw in the lymph from leprous nodules. He filled capillary tubes with the lymph, inserted them into a hen's egg and used the hen as a natural incubator.

The condition known as Sprue did not escape Manson's attention and study. He attributed this disabling complaint to the insidious effects of the climate and alcohol.

In 1878 Manson began his study of Malaria and here we have further evidence of his powers as an original observer.

This keenness is illustrated in a remarkable way by the story of the Mandarin who came to consult Manson about a skin rash. The patient kept clearing his throat and began to spit on the floor of Manson's consulting room. Manson was about to remind him of his bad manners when he says "My disgust and anger vanished on seeing the sputum to be tinged with blood." Manson rushed forwards and seized a specimen of the sputum. He examined it under the microscope and instead of finding the filaria embryo as he expected, he saw the egg of an unknown parasite. We now know it was the egg of the Paragonimus or lung fluke.

In Hong Kong.

In 1883 Manson left Amoy for Hong Kong. For many years Hong Kong had been looked on solely as the centre and distributor of merchandise but due to Manson's foresight it has now become a distributor of Science. It may be that in the future the Commercial fame of Hong Kong will wane but it is certain that her importance and fame as a centre for Science will slowly but surely increase.

Here in Hong Kong we have striking evidence that Manson was not a one-sided scientist. He was a hygienist in the widest sense as is shown by the fact that he took the leading part in the establishment of the present Hong Kong Dairy Farm. In those days he pointed out that the milk supply of a community is second in importance only to its water supply. The aim was not to supply milk as a luxury for the well-to-do but that fresh milk might become widely used as a food for the poorer classes. It is hoped that all appreciate the great boon of a continuous and safe supply of fresh milk.

Let us pass now to what was Manson's most eminent Public Service in this Colony, namely that in the cause of Medical Education. In Amoy he had striven manfully against opposition in that direction. In Hong Kong he found more scope and right well did he use his opportunity.

It would scarcely be fair however to forget that others before Manson's time had foreseen the great possibilities of developing medical education in Hong Kong. In 1845 a few medical practitioners formed a China Medical and Chirurgical Society. The first President was one, Dr. Tucker who at that time expressed the hope that a medical school would soon be formed. Unfortunately his untimely death resulted in a dissolution of the Society.

In June 1844 one, Dr. Hobson, opened a Missionary Hospital and he strongly advocated the cause of medical education. Owing to lack of funds he had to abandon the formation of a proposed medical school. Things remained dormant until Manson threw his energy into the scheme.

Medical Education.

His first notable achievement in the Colony then was the founding of a new Medical Society of which he became the first President. He commenced Medical teaching at the Alice Memorial Hospital. Very soon he so inspired the community both official and unofficial that from his small preliminary endeavours a very much more far reaching scheme gradually developed. He was the prime mover in the foundation of the Hong Kong Medical College—the precursor of the present medical school and of the existing University. In those days the Hong Kong Medical College had as Patron the Viceroy Li Hung Chang who had the greatest admiration for Manson and his achievements. The great man of China gave his influential support and wrote "There is no doubt that when your admirable project is achieved it will be appreciated and imitated and that it will, through your students, be a blessing to China."

First Graduation.

The first graduation ceremony of the Hong Kong College of Medicine was held on July 1893 and then it was stated that owing to the benevolent attitude of Viceroy Li Hung Chang "within the sacred precincts of the Emperor's palace European Medicine is welcomed and appreciated in the person of one of the graduates of the College of Medicine in Tientsin."

This first graduation was an outstanding event because one of the two graduates was Dr. Sun Yat Sen who had passed his examinations with distinction. According to Manson and Dr. James Cantlie (afterwards Sir James Cantlie) Dr. Sun Yat Sen was an excellent surgeon and practised for a short time in Macao. Dr. Cantlie used to go there to assist his former pupil in difficult operations. Cantlie writes as follows: "Why did I journey to Macao to help this man? For the reason that others have sought for and died for him because I loved him and respected him. He has a nature that draws men's regard and makes them ready to serve him at the operating table or on the battlefield—an unexplainable influence, a magnetism which prevails and finds its expression in (Continued on Page 1.)

Kowloon Supplement

HONG KONG, MARCH 4, 1933.

KOWLOON'S POST OFFICE

Kowloon is getting more and more discontented with its Post Office. Perhaps not without reason. The present "rabbit hutch" local residents affirm, is quite unsuited to the needs of this large and growing neighbourhood. Kowloon is as town-conscious as its sister across the water. It has civic pride and civic ideals, and it feels that it deserves a better building than the one the Government has seen fit to give it. Perhaps if some of the "big noises" of the Civil Service were to descend from their heights and live in Kowloon, they, too, would begin to demand a nobler institution for the receipt and despatch of His Majesty's mails and the sale of stamps and postal orders.

Some time ago we were promised a new Post Office. Like all Government promises, it was shrouded in mysterious verbiage. We still have our miserable "rabbit hutch," however, and it looks as if we shall have to put up with it for years to come. Perhaps the root of the trouble in that the Government still regards Kowloon as a rather straggling village, and the K.R.A. as a sort of unofficial parish council. Surely the time is ripe to stage some form of demonstration, in which the leading members of the K.R.A. will parade the streets with brave banners ("fluttering in the breeze") inscribed with the words "Down with the Post Office."

Of course, it should be demolished. If it were it would give Salisbury Road at least another twenty feet, which is what the authorities want. This would satisfy the Police, the Railway authorities, who regard their property on the opposite side with jealous eyes, and the K.R.A. Possibly the Railway would be only too delighted to pay for a new post office. Then we might use it.

If ever the dream comes true, and Kowloon is given a new Post Office, perhaps it would be wiser to build it in a more convenient spot. The present building is just where nobody wants it. The buses pass it coming and going, but they never stop there. If anyone wants to post a letter he has to walk or take a ricksha; this is inconvenient. A better plan would be to erect a Post Office in the Nathan Road.

FUTURE OF KOWLOON

II. FINE ROADS AND GROWING INDUSTRIES

So beautifully laid out and so perfectly surfaced are the principal thoroughfares of Kowloon, that the road system of the Peninsula has been held as a model for admiration by all visitors from near and far to the Colony. These perfect roads are not constructed within city limits only. They penetrate far beyond and into the remotest villages of the New Territories, extending to the farthest point of British territory to the Sumchun frontier. These roads provide the easiest and the safest means of communication, which is a most valuable asset in any progressive commercial and industrial community. But for the fact that roads were built with the idea of carrying heavy traffic, suburban districts in the New Territories might never have been opened up for residential purposes to the extent that they are to-day.

Country Houses.

Starting with Shatin, then on to Taiipo, Fanling, and Sheung Shui, seekers of serenity and tranquility from business distractions have built quite a network of the most beautiful country residences, to be seen in the drive round the circular road of the New Territories for a distance of nearly sixty miles. There are palatial residences of Chinese magnates at Fanling, Sheung Shui and Kam Tin, and well and prettily built bungalows with gardens in the districts beyond, to Castle Peak, where the bathing beaches are now provided with rest houses and contingent buildings where refreshments are served to picnickers to Castle Peak Bay.

Industrial Development.

Substantial and costly buildings bear evidence of the faith among industrialists of the possibilities of the New Territories as an industrial centre. The wealthy Texas Oil Co., following the lead of the earlier pioneers of the suppliers of bulk oil in Hong Kong, have erected their magnificent installation at Tsun Wan. They built a road connecting Castle Peak Road with the oil depot. A few miles beyond a new industry is making steady headway in the production of coal, briquettes for steam and household purposes. The Puro Cane Molasses Co. of London have their tanks for storage of molasses in bulk on the reclaimed shores of Sham Tseng Bay. Nearby, the Brewers & Distillers Co. of Hong Kong, a new concern, have now completed their brewery which bids fair to become a thriving new industry in Hong Kong. Nearer Old Kowloon the extensive reclamation of the Standard Oil Co. of New York in Lai-chikok Bay sees within its boundaries enormous-sized tanks for the storage of millions of gallons of oil. At the foot of the hill at Lai-chikok foundations for the new Women's Prison have been completed and the erection of the building is proceeding apace. The reclamation of Cheung Sha Wan Bay is getting on with a rapidity that is commendable.

RICKSHAS IN KOWLOON

Reduction Opposed By K.R.A.

I.G.P.'S REPLY

The assertion that the number of rickshas at present in service in Kowloon is barely enough to meet the requirements of the residents, made in a letter addressed by Mr. G. E. Terry, Hon. Secretary of the Kowloon Residents' Association to the Hon. I.G.P., is quoted in the appendix of the Association's annual report for 1932.

The letter states: "The fact that all rickshas now licensed have been on hire during the past year and that the hire has been regularly paid supports this opinion, and the Committee consider that even more rickshas could with advantage be placed in service in some of the outlying districts at present only served by the main bus routes. We submit that any decrease in the number of these vehicles would result in considerable inconvenience to residents, particularly in hot or rainy weather, and we would therefore urge that no such reduction be instituted until such time as it can be shown to be justified by lack of patronage."

To this letter Mr. E. D. C. Wolfe replied that, having regard to the fact that the new Vehicular Ferry would be opened early in the New Year, he had decided to spread the reduction of the number of rickshas playing for hire in Kowloon over a period of two years. Hence the number would be reduced by 50 as from January 1st, 1933, and by a further 50 as from January 1 1934.

LIFEPAPER READ BY MR.
HENRY KEWThe first of a series of Discussion
Classes, under the auspices of St.
Andrew's Club, was held in the Chater Room of the Church Hall on Thursday evening, when a paper was read by Mr. Henry Kew on
"A Philosophy of Life." The speaker declared that no philosophy could be constructed without the help of personal preference or belief. Every philosopher must take his stand on the conviction that truth must lie in one direction and support his conviction with faith.
It was part of the ordinary man's philosophy to do good and contribute to the spiritual development of man, and to work, not merely for gain or for a livelihood, but also for the general benefit of society. The greatest sin was to ignore one's inner convictions. The journalist who wrote against his personal convictions, the lawyer who assisted the schemes of rogues—these were sinners who had no right to raise an eyebrow at the painted woman on the street.An interesting discussion followed the reading of the paper.

YORKSHIREMEN IN HONG KONG"May We Nivver Want
Nowt!"SONG, DANCE AND DINNER
AT H.K. HOTEL

When the Society of Yorkshiremen in Hong Kong was founded, the suggestion was made that a mere country—not even one with three Ridny's—could hold its own with the big national Societies, St. Andrew's, St. George's, St. Patrick's and St. David's. However, Yorkshiremen traditionally go their own way. They may be content to run on a smaller scale than the Societies named, but they run very well, and yesterday they gave their third annual cabaret-dinner-dance, at the Hong Kong Hotel.

As on the other occasions, there was real good cheer and hearty hospitality, which everyone enjoyed. H.E. the Governor, Sir William Peel, who is Patron of the Society, and Lady Peel were present and among the large company were Mr. J. Scott Harston, the President of the Society, Mrs. and Miss Scott Harston, the President of St. George's Society and Mrs. Dowbiggin, the Chiefstain of St. Andrew's Society and Mrs. Greig, the President of St. Patrick's Society and Mrs. Rodmond and Mr. R. R. Davies, President of St. David's Society.

Total company numbered in all about 200.

Hors d'oeuvre were served on first floor lounge where the President entertained his large party, and a special spray of symbolical white roses decorated the President's table.

The President's Speech.

Mr. J. Scott Harston made a very witty speech, mostly in dialogue, proposing the health of the Society. It was, he said, like the labours of Hercules, trying to follow the standard of excellence, set by His Excellency in proposing this toast last year. Some time ago the question was asked what London would be without Yorkshiremen? Mr. Scott Harston then read out the distinguished Societies that had Yorkshire presidents, loud applause, greeting the announcement of the Society of Gas Engineers!

"Well that's summat to pat you on the back with," said the speaker, who went on to tell of a friend—a Scotsman—who went to live in Lancashire. "And when I was there I used to imagine it had all the virtues, but when I crossed over the border to Yorkshire I knew differently." Yorkshire, with its moors and vales and hills, its industries, and the qualities of its people, was England at its best. As for sport, Yorkshire were cricket champions again last year, the 10th time in 33 years. (Hear, hear.)

Yorkshire, as befitted a country (hear, hear) had many local rivalries, and several stories of Bradford and Leeds were related.

The Society was to be congratulated on Mr. Brearley, its Vice-President. (Hear, hear.) He was manager of the Chartered Bank, who had so much money that they didn't know what to do with it, and he was sure if the Society wanted any of it, they would get it at once, at very low rate of interest, and on the Secretary's note of hand. "I had better conclude there, and give you the health of the Society of Yorkshiremen in Hong Kong." (Loud Applause.)

attracting men to his side." You may all know how fortunate it was that Sun Yat Sen had gained the admiration of both Manson and Cantile because their help was instrumental in securing his release when he was kidnapped by his own countrymen in the Chinese Legation in London. Had Manson and Cantile failed to bring about their friend's release Sun Yat Sen would most have been assassinated.

Annual Government Grant.

From 1902 onwards the Hong Kong Medical College obtained an annual Government grant to help it along. In 1907 under the patronage of Sir M. Nathan the name was altered to the Hong Kong College of Medicine to signify that students of nationalities other than Chinese might be admitted. At that time the College had to use makeshifts to make good its somewhat anomalous circumstances. It had to borrow accommodation for special purposes all over the city. To remedy this the Government reserved in 1906 a suitable site on the Tai Ping Shan reclaimed area. In 1907 a Chinese benefactor Mr. Ng Li Hing offered $50,000 to erect Medical College buildings there. Work was about to commence when Mr. Mody, a Parsee gentleman, offered the sum of $130,000 for the erection of a University which should incorporate the Medical College. In 1912 the Medical College was merged with the University. The medical degrees granted by the University are recognised by the General Medical Council of Great Britain. All this wonderful development and our present status are the results of Manson's untiring efforts and enthusiasm.

Hard Struggle at Home.

In 1890 Manson retired to his native Scotland intending to settle down and enjoy the remainder of his days in peace, but within a year owing to family misfortunes and the depreciation of the Hong Kong dollar at the time (How history repeats itself) Manson was compelled to take up work again. He went to London as a consultant and for many years secretly made butter for his bread. Manson had not inhibited Dr. Radcliffe's "sure secret to make your fortune: use all mankind ill." His beloved work on tropical blood diseases was continued and in a small room at the top of his house he worked out the life history of the guinea worm in the water flea as well as making many more invaluable observations. Now this small room proved to be the nucleus of the future London School of Tropical Medicine.

Malaria.

In 1894 Manson published his Malaria-Mosquito Theory. His associations with Ronald Ross who was interested himself in Malaria in India were fruitful. There was a close scientific collaboration between these two great men and it culminated as all the world now knows in the complete vindication of the theory of "Mosquito Manson," as he was then known. It was worked out to the successful end by the undying enthusiasm, persistence, ingenuity and zeal of Ronald Ross.

Think of the practical but risky demonstration of the mosquito-malaria theory. Manson's pupils in the Roman campagna demonstrated that it was possible to remain untouched by malaria even during the most pestilential season of the year. They lived in a specially screened hut. Then came this bold experiment by Manson of producing Malaria in his own son by the bites of malaria-infected mosquitoes sent in special cages from Rome to England. Malaria was thus reproduced for the first time in one who had never been out of England.

In 1925 Manson died but just before his death he had the pleasure of knowing that through the generosity of Mr. Rockefeller the old School of Tropical Medicine was to be replaced by a magnificent new building. That stands now as the fine London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine in close proximity to the spot where the spark first took fire over half a century before.

Ladies and gentlemen, I have given you but a sketchy account of the career of the great Manson. I am not claiming that the discovered Tropical Medicine but we must realise and remember that by his work and precepts he made it a new and living thing.

He was the first to demonstrate the cause and transference of many hitherto obscure tropical diseases and he pointed the way to a more scientific treatment of these conditions. He was certainly the first to found and direct a school devoted to the teaching of Tropical Medicine.

What benefit has the world at large derived from this? Manson has rendered safe for colonization and development many unhealthy and inhospitable regions of the British Empire and many other parts of the Tropics.

How few of us and how many fewer of people in general ever pass and think what posterity owes to Manson whose work entitles him to belong to that distinguished group which includes the names of Pasteur, Koch and Lister. The prosperity and the fortunes of some countries and of many business magnates have been entirely dependent on the self-sacrificing struggles of those pioneer brothers of our profession who carry on and blaze the trail in the face of pestilence and fell disease in desolate areas of the tropics.

There is no doubt that without Manson and his wonderful hypotheses the solving of the mystery of Yellow Fever would have been long delayed and that no Gorgas would have arisen betimes to guide American energy, wealth and labour to construct the Panama Canal—a world marvel of enterprise.

Neglectful Hong Kong.

Let us look around this University and what do we see? Certainly nothing as a lasting tribute to Manson, the founder of our present Medical School. How many of the community remember his name or realise what the Colony owes to him? He has been largely forgotten. He was not known as a maker of millions either honestly or dishonestly nor did he gain fame by self advertisement. He might very well have done so had he been unscrupulous. There are no monuments to his memory, no streets bear his name and yet his services to the community as a whole have equalled, if not surpassed, those of anyone in the Colony's history. It is the same old story—Doctors have always been noble enough to devote their lives for the benefit of humanity for nothing. The outstanding example of "Service before Self."

As students you may be excused if you enquire: Is Medical Research worth whilst? Certainly for the human race successful investigation is well worth while but for the individual who attempts it is often less worth while. We have only to look at the scanty recognition bestowed on Manson and at how Ronald Ross, Manson's colleague in Malaria work was allowed to end his days almost as a pauper. It is true that the successful research worker always has one satisfaction—pleasure in his own achievement. The great misfortune is that this will not supply him and his family with bread and butter much less with peaches and champagne.

This evening I would ask you medical students to always remember that Manson founded and directed the Medical School of Hong Kong—the embryo of what has now become this University. There was a time when it was regarded as an undignified thing for a University to concern itself with the teaching of subjects having a utilitarian value. Happily things have changed as Universities have been wise in taking note that they are expected to minister to the national life and not to dwell on some lofty height remote from the common lot. We will agree that it has been an advantage to medicine to stand in its due place in the academic world but there has been some reciprocal benefit for the association has helped to keep this world in touch with the larger school of life. Make it your endeavour to follow the new spirit Manson introduced into Tropical Medicine. This means to carry out your care of the sick with devotion, to serve the Institution to which you belong with unswerving loyalty, to be a staunch, loyal and helpful friend to one's colleagues, to despise petty jealousies and above all to serve Science.

In conclusion let me remind you of Manson's words: "Do not stand your less educated brethren by the wayside and let them go down the road of ignorance and poverty. Have the knowledge and carry with you, and show yourselves as well as learned."

PASSENGERS NOT
ON CLEARANCEShip's Captain Fined CHINESE SOLDIERS FOUND
ON BOARD

The case was concluded, before Commander Hole at the Marine Court yesterday, in which Captain Oscar Soovik, master of the s.s. Yuan On, was charged with having on March 2 (a) commenced a voyage at a time not previously notified and not approved by the Hon. Inspector of Police; (b) left the waters of the Colony with more than 12 passengers on board without having a proper passenger certificate; (c) unlawfully misrepresented the number of passengers on board in the clearance permit by stating 12 instead of 231; and (d) left the waters of the Colony with a greater number of passengers than allowed by the clearance.

The accused was convicted on the A, C and D charges, and fines totalling $250 were imposed. It will be recalled that at the previous hearing the accused was also convicted on the B charges, and a fine of $4,000 was imposed. The accused, however, asked to be allowed to seek legal aid, and His Worship accordingly cancelled the fine and adjourned the case until yesterday morning.

Mr. D. L. Strellet appeared on his behalf, and after lengthy submission, the accused was found "not guilty" on that charge. Sub-Inspector A. Wright told the Court that at about 7 a.m. on March 2, in the company of Lance Sergeant F. Nolan he stopped the s.s. Yuan On, outside the western entrance of the harbour. He asked the captain to produce the ship's papers, and the accused showed witness a clearance from the Harbour office. The clearance showed that this ship had cleared with 11 passengers for Amoy, whereas there were 231 passengers on board.

Cross-examined by Mr. Strellet, as to whether every vessel had to be searched by the Police, witness replied that he could not answer the question.

Mr. Strellet: Is it not a fact that all cargo steamers leave without being searched?

Inspector Wright: I could not answer that.

If it had been true that this was a cargo vessel with 11 passengers and no more on board, would the search have been carried out?—If any vessel carries even one passenger, it has to be searched.

Do you know of a single instance in which a vessel not a passenger vessel carrying a number of passengers has ever produced a certificate from the police of having been searched?—No.

You cannot remember such a case?—No.

The Captain says that as a cargo non-passenger carrying vessel he has never been searched?—Maybe.

If in fact there had been only 11 passengers on board, would you have asked for a certificate of search?—I would if I had stopped the vessel.

Have you any reason to think that any passengers on that ship got on at Hong Kong?—No.

Have you any reason to believe that any passengers disembarked from that ship?—No.

Soldiers on Board.

Out of the 231 passengers, were 222 dressed as Chinese soldiers or officers?—A large percentage of them were dressed as Chinese soldiers.

Would you agree with the figure of 222?—No. I would say about 200.

You did not differentiate or count them?—No.

Did you enquire where they came from?—No.

You have nowhere seen this vessel described as a passenger vessel?—No.

Did you enquire whether any of the passengers were persons who paid for their transportation?—No.

After Lance Sergeant Nolan had given corroborative evidence the complainant was called as witness for the defence.

Soldiers from Canton.

Yeung King Him, comrade of the s.s. Yuan On, said that the vessel left Canton for Hong Kong on March 1. Before she left Canton, 221 soldiers boarded her. They came on board by order of the Canton Government, and he had no instructions from the Hong Kong or Canton officer about them. In addition to these soldiers who were bound for Amoy, there were 11 other passengers, the relatives of some of the officers.

In reply to Mr. Strellet, witness said that as far as he knew no arrangement was made by the Canton Government for the fares of the soldiers, but they paid for the food supplied to them. When the ship arrived in Hong Kong none of the soldiers or of the passengers got off the ship.

After witness had concluded his evidence, Mr. Strellet submitted that the soldiers were not passengers in the proper sense of the word, as they were not bona fide

THE MATILDA
HOSPITALNew Operating Theatre
Completed

A reception and "open day" was held yesterday at the Matilda Hospital by the Medical Superintendent, Dr. J. H. Montgomery, and the Hospital Staff in honour of the completion of the new operating theatre, and of the 25th anniversary of the opening of the hospital.

During the past five years the Surgical work of the Hospital has been steadily increasing and the number of operations performed has quadrupled making it imperative to consider the question of providing a modern operating theatre suite.

In March of 1928 the Trustees and Governing Body gave permission to build a new block to replace the present unsatisfactory operating theatre. This decision, though not actually made to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the opening of the Hospital, happily coincided with that event. It was rather difficult at first to decide where to build the new block without interfering with any of the present buildings, and finally the servants quarters of the Doctor's house were remodelled and over them was built the new theatre suite.

A Complete Unit.

This block is a complete unit, conveniently arranged and joined to the main Hospital by an extension of the central corridor. It comprises a large operating theatre with large windows with steel frames and overhead lights to the North and to the North-West.

Communicating with the theatre on the South side is the sterilizing room and communicating with the sterilizing room is the instrument room. Behind the instrument room is an anaesthetic room with a good sized store room leading from that for the keeping of all stocks of necessary surgical supplies. On the opposite side of the building there is a separate room for the Surgeons to wash up before operation, a Surgeons room with dressing rooms and shower bath attached. All the rooms open into a central hall and corridor and radiators have been installed for heating. The floors and walls are finished in marble. Terrazzo of a buff colour with green dado and green border lines on the floor, the colours harmonising well, the buff colour preventing an uncomfortable glare in sunny weather.

Useful and Looks Well.

The whole building including the roof is of reinforced concrete finished outside with Shanghai granite concrete. The window frames are all steel glazed with large plate glass sheets. The sanitary fittings together with bolts, locks, hinges, etc., are chromium plated and an excellent system of electric lighting with heat and power supply has also been installed.

Below the main building on either side are two covered in loggias for the use of patients, with servants' rooms, kitchens and bathrooms. The building has been kept in conformity as far as possible with the rest of the Hospital except for the outside finish and it is hoped at some future time that the other Hospital buildings may be finished with granite concrete to present a uniform appearance as well as to preserve the older buildings.

The building both internally and externally looks well and will be an enormous help in the Surgical work. The chief advantage of the new theatre as compared with the old is that it is on the North and West sides of the building and so does not get the early morning sun which made the old theatre intolerable in the hot weather. The lighting too is excellent having a window 12 feet long on the North side with overhead light and on the West side a bow window about 14 ft. long and with an overhead light.

The sterilizing is done in a separate room so that one is not troubled with the steam and heat from that source. Most of the equipment of the theatre including the operating table is stainless steel or chromium plated steel and the older instruments not of this type are being practically as good as new.

The architects are Messrs Palmer & Turner, and Michael Lamb & Co. the contractors. Messrs. Dodwell & Co. have been responsible for the central heating, hot and cold water supply and all sanitary work. Messrs. A. Vannini & Co. have done the marble Terrazzo very effectively. The General Electric Co. have undertaken the electric wiring and fittings and the windows and glass are supplied by Critchell & Co. England, through their agents Messrs. Dodwell & Co. Hong Kong.

paying passengers. Commander Hole then quoted the definition of the word passenger as defined in the Piracy Prevention Ordinance, and said that it was definitely laid down that any persons other than the crew on board a vessel, is considered a passenger.

He therefore convicted the defendant as stated.

THE ANNUAL RACE
MEETING

LITTLE did the pioneers of Hong Kong think, when they held their early race meetings in the Colony, that the time would come when the sport would be in the position it enjoys to-day. During Race Week, business was practically at a standstill and all newspapers in the Colony, in response to the heavy demand by the public, devoted many columns to the activities of the ponies at Happy Valley. The Chinese dailies found it equally necessary to keep level with the times and to provide their readers with all the news they could gather about the meeting. Originally a handful of local racing; now there are thousands, and the Annual Race Meeting in Hong Kong has become for the Chinese, as the foreigners, the leading social and sporting event of the year.

The most interesting, and in one sense the most gratifying, development in recent years has been the interest and support given to racing by the Chinese community.
The first Chinese owner, Mr. Ho
Kom Tong, in a few brief years racing won a number of the principal classics which have long evaded many big owners. Mr.
CHAN TIN SON, another of the foremost of Chinese owners scored many triumphs with Apollo and Woodland Stag, and no doubt their success inspired others to follow in their footsteps. So popular has the sport become among the Chinese that they now occupy a very prominent place in local racing and in every race run at the recent Annual Meeting, Chinese owners were represented and the successes were equally divided, except in the case of the Champions, which appear to have become in local racing,
a heritage of the DUVERNAIS stable.

The standard of racing, thanks to the keenness of owners, has improved considerably in recent years.
The fact that the existing records are being constantly lowered is a tribute not only to the quality of the horseflesh that is raced here but also to the patience and perseverance of the trainers. The racing of cross-bred ponies in Hong Kong has proved an enormous success and some of the records established this season will probably stand for years. Especially is this true in the case of Liberty Bay, a pony which lowered the record for the mile and three quarters and the mile and a quarter by nearly seven seconds in each case. For a China pony to run a mile and a quarter in 2 minutes 24 seconds is no mean feat and one is led to wonder, with performances of this standard being recorded, whether a good cross-bred China pony is not really a better racing animal than the Australian ponies introduced here. For the moment the Australians are admittedly much faster, but the day may yet come when the "China-pony" will outdo even animals like Liberty Bay, and then the question will be whether they might be pitted against the Australians. It may seem far-fetched to envisage the day when the average run of the China ponies can touch the standard set by Liberty Bay, but were not racers dumbfounded by the splendid performances of Sitting Bull when that pony was at his prime, and are not those performances completely overshadowed today?

After three years experiment in Hong Kong, the Australian ponies have proved their worth and no doubt will continue to grow in popularity this year. The fact that the Champions has been won this year by a new pony, and that in three years it has been won by three different ponies is the strongest argument against those who would still insist that the form of the Australian ponies is as astonishingly consistent that there is very little sport to be found in racing confined to this class. If this was the view a couple of years ago of many Chinese supporters of the turf, it is certainly not the view to-day and they have come to realize that jockeyship and judgment, as well as quality and fitness are as big factors in events for Australian ponies as they are for China ponies.

It seems fitting that a lady owner should win the Derby this year. Mrs.
Pearce is now even with her husband having each won the Derby once. Mr. Pearce with King's Service in 1931 and Mrs. Pearce with Trentbridge, this year. The latter's candidate is of exceptional class, and it was unfortunate that he should have come across such a "smasher" as Liberty Bay in the Champions. But for this, Mrs.
Pearce might have won the Trial
Plate, the Derby and the Champions with her one pony. It was bad luck for their stable when King Salmon went wrong when he did and was unable to start in the Valley, but it was some consolation that the play recovered sufficiently during the meeting to take part in several events and to win
one of them!

The social side of the Annual Race Meeting is in many ways as interesting as the sporting aspect.
Perhaps nowhere in the world is there a more picturesque race course. If the scenery of, say, Goodwood, is more beautiful, crowded, less interesting. Race going frocks from Paris may be smart, and morning coats from Savile Row well cut, but Chinese gala costumes for men and women

THE A.D.C.

"NINE TILL SIX," MAKING
FINE PROGRESS

Preparations for the Hong Kong
Amateur Dramatic Club's production "Nine Till Six" are proceeding apace and all concerned are working hard at their respective jobs. The tried players bid fair to surpass any of their previous efforts and a wealth of talent has been found in the new-comers.

The "sets" are nearing completion as are the dresses, and the Pembroke dressmaking and millinery establishment promises to present a colourful and animated scene at the King's Theatre on the nights of 14th, 15th and 16th inst.

As rehearsal progress it becomes more and more apparent that the
A.D.C. has made an excellent choice in the selection of this play. The story is most interesting and intensely human. It reveals the inner workings of the large Regent street establishments and probes deeply into the lives of the shop assistants and mannequins.

Conditions as affecting employed and employer alike, are touched upon in a most startling manner and the difficult problems of present-day trade fairly emphasized. The authors have handled their task with great skill. The up-hill battle of life is set out in cold matter-of-fact terms;
the touches of pathos are forceful
but lightly and beautifully handled;
while the whole is framed in a setting of laughter.

Booking is now open at the King's Theatre and even the one dollar seats can be reserved.

A SPORTS MEET IN HONANModern China Graphically Portrayed

"OLD" CHINA LOOKS ON!

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

A few days ago some of us went to see the games and competitions at the Public Recreation and Sports Ground in the city here. This ground, which cost the city over $200,000 to lay out, is on the site of the beautiful old Manchou city demolished by eager, young, and enthusiastic Republicans in 1927.
The old Dragon Palace looks rather lonely now, but very picturesque with the lake round it. Truly we are in modern China now! We realized this as we sat in our richshaws going to the sports ground, our coolies toiling on down the dusty road. The public buses (especially run for the occasion), "toot-tooted" by, as well as an occasional private Chinese car. Boy scouts, soldiers, students, walking or riding on bicycles, mingled with the crowds around us. There was the incessant
"squeak squeak" of the old-fashioned barrows, and "rattle"
of the clumsy carts and drays drawn by oxen or cows or mules or ponies or donkeys (or some of each) in twos
and threes—the three, by the way, being invariably in a row and of quite mixed varieties.

Tennis, Volley Ball and Wrestling.
Arrived at the sports ground we saw games of tennis, volleyball, and wrestling matches going on as we sat in the grandstand in the boiling sun. It was a great occasion, this annual "meet" of the North China Sports Association, to which all leading schools and colleges in the Provinces of Hupeh, Honan, Shan-si, and Hopei send teams. There were girl competitors in "shorts"
and in their school colours, just like the boys competing with them.

This year the place of meeting was fixed for Kufeng, a great honour, and for the three to four days of sport a public holiday was declared and business was largely suspended.
Crowds and crowds of people (many of them visitors from provinces mentioned above) flocked to the Recreation Grounds' Stadium.
The entrance fee charged was 200
cash—about 6d.

ing and a perfect kaleidoscope of colour.

Under 1388 Charter.

Complaint against the dues charged by the burgh of Stirling under an ancient charter on goods coming into or leaving the town was made by Mr. Turnbull, F.W.
Kirk, at the annual meeting of the

ed that the burgh of Stirling claimed the right to levy these customs commencing with that granted by King Robert II. It was dated July 13, 1388. Mr. London added that the question was under consideration by the council of the Association.

Mr. J. H. Thomas' Talk.

Mr. J. H. Thomas' friendly little chat with the M.C.C. leaders had rather a ludicrous effect. It caused Continental and American newspapers to take the Test match controversy with extreme seriousness. No number of facetious dis-claimers will suffice to convince them that a meeting between a Cabinet Minister and two past presidents of the M.C.C. in the solemn surroundings of Dominions Office was purely social in its implications.

Mr. Thomas' chat even provoked
Mr. Paul Schaffer, most serious

eign correspondents, into writing in the Berliner Tageblatt a long and thoughtful article on "Cricket

"A Political Matter."

Naval Mascots.

The Maori kilt which, Admiral Sir Lionel Halsey wore as a good luck talisman during the war when his ship, in New Zealand, went into action, was not the New Zealand's only mascot.

There was also "Pelorus Jack,"
a famous bulldog, which survived until after the Armistice.

Pelorus Jack was named after the strange fish which, for several years, used to follow steamers through Pelorus Sound, between the North and South Islands of New Zealand. Although the Navy claimed him as a shark, the fish was, I think, a species of dolphin.

Assaulting the Tsar.
Pelorus Jack, the bulldog, was as successful a mascot in the opinion of the crew as Admiral Halsey's Maori kilt.

The bulldog's greatest exploit however, was perpetrated when Admiral Beatty's battle cruiser squadron was at Kronstadt. When the Tsar came to visit the squadron, Pelorus Jack made a sudden assault on the Imperial trousers.
Fortunately, his spring was broken by a watchful midshipman, and a major catastrophe was averted.

Bulldogs have always been favorite naval mascots. The fashion was set by the late Lord Charles Berkeley, who used to breed them and then present them to battleships.

JAPAN'S LATEST DEMAND

That Chinese Troops Withdraw From Tientsin!

Do Tokyo Militarists Mean To Enter China Proper?

REPORTED SINO-JAPANESE SECRET UNDERSTANDING

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

TOKYO, March 3. A MESSAGE from Lingyuan states that the Kawahara vanguard is reported to have entered Pingchuan, thirty-five miles from Jehol City, at eleven o'clock this morning.

NANKING, March 3. The Government has instructed Yu Hsueh Chung to reject the Japanese demand for the withdrawal of Chinese forces stationed at Tientsin.

LATER. The report that China and Japan have reached a secret understanding in regard to Jehol has evoked the strongest denial by a Chinese Government spokesman, who branded the report as "an outrageous lie."

CHINESE CASUALTIES

PEIPING, March 3. Chinese casualties during yesterday's fighting in Jehol are placed at 1,500 killed and about 3,000 wounded.

EVENTS MOVING RAPIDLY IN JEHO

PEIPING, March 3. Reuter's special correspondent reports from Jehol that before proceeding to the front, General Tang Yu Lin admitted that Lingyuan was surrounded on all sides by the Japanese troops and the position there was desperate. He said he wanted the world to know that he would fight to the finish. He declared that Manchukuo was hated here and would be resisted. He also asserted that the Japanese had been repulsed from Chihfeng.

General Tang Yu Lin looks worst and tired. With Lingnan and other places lost and Lingyuan surrounded, events appear to be moving rapidly in Jehol province. General Chang Hsueh Liang's troops here have created the best impression among the people. They behave well and pay for their food.

Prices are rising rapidly due to war conditions. Petrol is now $16 a case. Cars here loaded with food for the front are unable to leave due to shortage of petrol.

GEN. UNG TO REORGANISE 19TH ROUTE ARMY

LATER. Apparently no war in China is now complete without the famous Nineteenth Route Army. Marshal Chang Hsueh Liang has appointed General Oung Chao Yen, the famous defender of the Woosung Forts during the Shanghai war to reorganise the Command and division of the 19th Route Army for the defence of Jehol. General Oung is already in the Province and has started his duties being assisted by Wu Ko Jen, also of the Nineteenth Route Army.

LONDON CHINESE ANXIOUS

LONDON, March 3. The Chinese community in London is most anxiously following the news of the Jehol events as given in the papers and wireless bulletins.

The exiled community, though small, is determined to do its utmost to help the Chinese forces on the Jehol front. A number of seamen and labourers have banded together to contribute funds from their wages, and some seamen, earning only $2 per week, are contributing as much as ten shillings of their pay.

UNEMPLOYED IN BRITAIN

REDUCED BY VOLUNTARY ORGANISATIONS

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

RUGBY, March 3. THE Minister of Labour, Sir Henry Betterson, made reference in the House of Commons last night, to the excellent and successful work done by voluntary organisations in finding occupation for the unemployed.

He claimed no political credit for their efforts, which, he said, arose out of a remarkable and rapidly growing movement in which an increasing number of people had devoted themselves to helping the unemployed. By their activities, work of some kind or other had been started in about 500 different areas, covering at present, about 150,000 persons.

CHINA'S DELEGATES TO "CARRY ON"

AFTER RECEIVING INSTRUCTIONS FROM NANKING

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

GENEVA, March 3. IT IS ascertained that Mr. Quo Tai Chi, Dr. Wellington Koo and Dr. W. W. Yen have telegraphed to Nanking resigning their posts as the Chinese representatives to the League.

Their view is that the centre of gravity has shifted from Geneva to Jehol, where stout resistance should be offered.

Dr. Wellington Koo has confirmed that he and his colleagues have offered their resignations as the Chinese delegates to the League Assembly in connection with the Sino-Japanese dispute.

They felt that the close of one chapter had been reached at Geneva and were of the opinion that the Government might like to have new blood to represent its views.

In addition they were all very tired, having worked a long time, and they felt the need of a change. However, having received the information for which they had asked from their Government regarding the position, and its plans, they had agreed to carry on.

RESTRICTION IN RUBBER

DUTCH GOV. FEEL CAUTION IS NECESSARY

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, March 3. CAUTION regarding the introduction of the scheme for forced restriction in rubber is necessary, and the Dutch Government have only to consider a scheme in which Britain will fully co-operate, were points stressed by the Minister of the Colonies in the Second Chamber at The Hague, yesterday, according to a message received from the Amsterdam correspondent of the Financial Times.

Indicating that the Dutch Government were willing to reconsider the rubber situation in the light of present circumstances, the Minister, replying to a question, said that the Government would have to be most prudent in future, in view of past experiences.

FINANCIAL CRISIS IN AMERICA

DISCLOSURE OF G.$116,000,000 LOSS IN MONETARY GOLD STOCKS

MANY STOCK EXCHANGES CLOSE DOWN

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

WASHINGTON, March 3. EVIDENCE of the seriousness and the acuteness of the bank crisis is contained in the weekly statement of the Federal Reserve Board, dated March 1.

This discloses a loss of G.$116,000,000 in monetary gold stocks, and an increase of G.$732,000,000 in money in circulation.

Money in circulation has increased by G.$1,137,000,000 since March 2 last year.

A message from Olympia states that the Governor of Washington State has proclaimed a three-day bank "holiday," while news from New York is to the effect that the Governor of Kentucky has extended the State bank "holiday" until March 11.

50,000,000 PEOPLE NOW AFFECTED

NEW YORK, March 3. The number of States joining the bank "holiday" has now been augmented by the imposition of restrictive measures in Arizona, California, Nevada, Oregon, Louisiana and Oklahoma, where the closing of the banks varies from four to five days.

Altogether over fifty million American citizens, living in eighteen States are now affected by the moratorium. It follows that the crisis in these States will influence depositors in other States where moratoria have not been declared to get their money out of the banks. If they possibly can precipitating similar conditions in other States.

Stock Exchanges Close. As a result of the bank "holidays," the Stock Exchanges at San Francisco, Cleveland, Detroit and the New Orleans Cotton Exchange have closed, while a number of livestock markets in the agricultural centres are idle.

The Federal Reserve Bank has advanced the re-discount rate from two and half to three per cent.

More "Holidays."

NEW YORK, March 3. A message from Boise City states that the Governor of Idaho has declared a 10-day bank "holiday," while it is announced from Austin that the Governor of Texas has declared a financial moratorium for Texas and has ordered all banks to be closed until March 11.

HITLER ATTACKS DEMOCRACY

"Not Fighting To Save Capitalism"

GREAT CROWD APPLAUDS CHANCELLOR

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

BERLIN, March 3. AN attack on Democracy was made by Chancellor Adolf Hitler, in the course of a wildly applauded speech, at the Sports Palace, which was broadcast throughout Germany last night.

He said that Democracy never created values. This was done by personalities whose work for democracy was always destroyed. One genius could mean more for a nation than millions of capital.

"I am not fighting to save Capitalism. I myself am a child of the people and if it can be proved that Marxism, by slaying 10,000 people can make a paradise on earth, I will turn Marxist too," Chancellor Hitler concluded.

The elections take place on Sunday.

German Communist Leader Escapes. The Communist leader, Ernst Thaelmann, has escaped to Copenhagen according to a Hamburg newspaper.

NORTH-EAST COAST OF JAPAN SWEEP BY TIDAL WAVE

Dead 541; Missing 404; Injured 1,000

Village of Funakoshi Completely Wiped Out

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

TOKYO, March 3. THE OFFICIAL FIGURES OF CASUALTIES CAUSED BY THE EARTHQUAKE AT EIGHT THIS EVENING ARE: DEAD 541, MISSING 404, INJURED 1,000.

Later. Fully three hundred miles of the north-east coast of the main island of Japan appears to have been devastated by the tidal wave.

The region of the bay extends from Ishinomaki to Shiroya, the northern-most tip of the island, while even Hokkaido was affected.

Over a hundred are reported to have been killed at Omoto, while numbers are drowned and missing at other points.

Twelve are known to be dead and forty-five are missing at Tanohata, while there are thirty dead at other points.

The village of Funakoshi is reported to have been wiped out completely. Hundreds of houses have been destroyed in other villages. Five are dead and several missing at Cape Erimo.

Although Kamakishi appears the worst affected, a number of other towns have suffered heavily.

Earlier. The casualties in the earthquake reported so far total about 450 dead and injured and 150 missing.

15,000 HOUSES WASHED AWAY

TOKYO, March 3. Many lives are feared lost, and 15,000 houses are reported to have been washed away by a tidal wave which swept over Kamakishi, a Japanese mining village, following severe earthquake shocks, early this morning.

The tremors, felt in Tokyo at 2.30 a.m., were exceptionally severe. Only minor damage is, however, reported from the city.

Rescue workers and supplies are being rushed to Kamakishi to aid the stricken population, and it is expected that the death toll is considerable.

The village is 200 miles north of Tokyo, and lies 10 miles inland from the east coast of Honshu.

Tremors Felt in England.

LONDON, March 3. The greatest earthquake recorded in the 38 years' experience of Mr. Shaw, seismologist at West Bromwich observatory, near Birmingham, was felt yesterday evening. It began at 5.43 p.m., at a distance estimated at 6,000 miles.

The shocks, which ceased at 9 p.m., were so severe, that levers were thrown from the sockets. It was impossible to obtain a complete record.

POLICY OF CHEAP MONEY

MAY LEAD TO INCREASED PRICES

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

RUGBY, March 3. THE Chancellor of Exchequer, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, in the House of Commons yesterday, said that it was impossible to isolate sterling prices completely from the effect of the fall in world prices. World prices had fallen some 20 per cent. the last 18 months, he was not without hope, that the policy of cheap money and plentiful credit, which had brought about that result, might, if continued, lead to an increase in prices.

The process would undoubtedly be greatly facilitated if an international agreement could be obtained for the solution of present world problems.

BRIGHT CRICKET AT MELBOURNE

M.C.C. SCORE 321 AGAINST VICTORIA

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

MELBOURNE, Mar. 3. BRIGHT cricket was witnessed this morning when the M.C.C. won the toss and batted in the penultimate match of their Australian tour against Victoria.

There were about 2,000 spectators present in fine weather and on a good wicket they were treated to some delightful batting, notably on the part of Walter Hammond, the famous Gloucestershire all-rounder.

At the lunch-interval, the M.C.C. had obtained 100 runs for two wickets, to which Hammond contributed in some magnificent hitting.

Hammond was in for exactly 49 minutes. He hit eight hours and two sixes, obtaining 44 out of his 50 runs in boundary hits.

Sutcliffe went into lunch having scored 33 not out. After lunch this M.C.C. carried their score to 321, Sutcliffe 75. Tate 94 not out, during his innings Tate hit fifteen fours.

Victor, at the close of play were nine runs for no wicket.

IN HONG KONG TO-DAY

GENERALLY OVERCAST

YESTERDAY'S WEATHER REPORT, FORECAST AND REMARKS, ISSUED BY THE ROYAL OBSERVATORY AT 5.40 P.M., STATED:-

THE anti-cyclone CONTINUES MOVING EASTWARD AND IS NOW CENTRED OVER S.E. MANCHURIA. MODERATE TO FRESH MONSOON WINDS PERVALE ALONG THE S.E. COAST OF CHINA AND OVER THE NORTHERN CHINA SEA.

LOCAL FORECAST:- F. WINDS, MODERATE, GENERALLY OVERCAST.

As a result of the anti-cyclone, many people have turned to this area for residences, and rentals are rapidly rising especially for houses on the new roads. Consequently, there is a boom in real estate values.

The ferry services are, on the other hand, adversely affected by the bridge, which is now preferred by travellers. Taxis and motor boats running as ferries have been reduced by the Government in consideration of the present conditions.

As to the sampans, the fact that hand wagons are not allowed over the bridge has avoided a real calamity for those with boats, as these will still be used for the conveyance of goods across the river, except where motor vehicles are used.

Japan's Leading Tennis Stars In Wonderful Exhibition

LOCAL FANS BEWILDERED AT VISITORS' HOT PACE AND GREAT ACCURACY

NUNOI GIVES MARVELLOUS DOUBLES PERFORMANCE

(By SALADIN)

In what must be considered a remarkable success from every point of view, Jiro Satoh, H. Nunoi and E. Ito, who are on their way to Europe to join Miki, to represent Japan in the Davis Cup Competition, gave a series of exhibitions on the Stand Court of the Hong Kong Cricket Club yesterday afternoon. Tremendous public interest was taken in their appearances, every available seat being occupied, while despite extra seating accommodation on the opposition side of the court provided in an endeavour to meet the demand for admission, a large number had to be content with standing room.

BRILLIANT SINGLES BETWEEN SATOH AND NUNOI

Wonderful Exposition.

The visitors gave a wonderful exposition of the game, and kept the large gallery fascinated by the very polished stroke production, remarkable accuracy, hard hitting and marvellous control of the ball. They certainly made tennis very appealing and attractive, and gave an impression of the high standard of play prevailing in their country and of the bold bid for honours they will soon be making in the Davis Cup Competition.

An Education.

The tit-bit of the afternoon, as expected, was the Singles between Satoh and Nunoi, which lasted forty minutes, and they cramped all their brilliance and knowledge of the game in that short space of time, so that the gallery sat enraptured all the while, following the progress of the match with admiration and delight to see the clever way in which they struggled for points. Indeed, it was an education to watch them play. The match produced, needless to say, a standard of play worthy, I consider, for the best seen here by such world known players as Cochet, Brugnon, Richards, Snodgrass and Howard Kingsley.

From start to finish, they engaged each other in a series of brilliant rallies, which created an atmosphere of exhilaration among the spectators, who were treated to a non-stop barrage of attacking shots from end to end of the court, by both players. Brilliant shots that appeared certain of scoring outright were invariably returned equally brilliantly, and one seemed at a loss to applaud the masterly aggressive tactics of Jiro Satoh or the beautiful retrievers of Nunoi.

Perfect Confidence and Timing.

The most remarkable feature of the visitor's game was the speed and accuracy of their shots. Forehand and backhand strokes made little difference to them, as they hit with perfect confidence and timing. When in tight corners they invariably whipped a hard shot in an endeavour to score, while they controlled the ball so well that it travelled not more than a few inches above the net most of the time, and as rallies were invariably long and maintained at a hot pace, the exchanges proved to be thrilling.

On the Singles performance, Satoh showed up slightly better, and at the end of play he held the advantage, having won the first set, and held 3 games all in the second set. His ground shots had plenty of kick behind them, and as his placements were accurate he managed to keep Nunoi on the run all over the court. Possessing strong wrist work, he imparted a great deal of undercut to his shots, which were wonderfully well controlled. He played characteristically throughout, and at periods of seriousness when engaged in hard struggle for important points, he displayed great determination. On those occasions he rose to great heights. His sweeping drives then gathered fury, while his smashes became deadly accurate and his volleys tricky. Satoh also exhibited a few fancy shots which amused the crowd.

Nunoi as a Stylist.

Nunoi distinguished himself as a stylist, and as such appeared to be the more polished player. He showed remarkable freedom in the execution of his shots, and it was this factor that enabled him to meet Satoh's tremendous attacking shots. Fleeter of foot and quick stroke producing, he gained the admiration and applause of the gallery by his ability to retrieve most of Satoh's severest shots, and many a time put over hair raising retrievers which turned Aces. His backhand was nice to watch. Beginning with an easy swing, he completed the shot with top spin with plenty of control and short follow through.

His greatest value, however, is at doubles. (This is a bold statement, I think, of the player ranked No. 1 in Japan, but in both the doubles game in which he was engaged, Nunoi gave distinctly more brilliant exhibitions. His smashes were easily the most spectacular feature of the day, while his netplay appeared flawless. On the whole he proved marvellous at doubles.

Doubles Exhibitions.

An attempt to test local standard proved the great disparity existing in Hong Kong and Japan. The Rumphins opposed to Satoh and Nunoi found the race much too hot for them, and although they showed up pluckily at times, the Japanese proved head and shoulders above them, winning by 6-1, 6-2.

In another doubles exhibition Nunoi partnered Goldman against Ito and Fincher, which provided an interesting preliminary to the Singles match that followed.

this race. Iron Grey (149 pounds) took a good thing and candidly, there is no reason why the bottom weights, The Leprechaun and Auction Bridge, should not run into places. This is the best race of the day from the pari-mutuel point of view.

Hang Kong Handicap "B" Class. In spite of the fact that he will be carrying top weight, Brechin looks the best thing for this race and his biggest danger will be Blue Star, another of those carrying top weight. Distre may run into a place but is extremely unlikely to win in view of his weight.

The Moonie Ponds Handicap.

With D. S. Li away Polar Star will be ridden by Mr. Butler in this race and although the pony will be getting a concession of five pounds from Woodland Stag (170) he does not look to me likely to beat Mr. Frost's mount. Still, a good race is predicted and when one remembers that Polar Star was within a length of Night Star a quarter mile from home in the Australian Championships and that that mile was in 1.51, there is reason to think that Woodland Stag will have to go all out if he is going to win. City of Brisbane may go out here, but he does not look like being able to upset the favourites.

LOCAL FOOTBALL

Second Round Of Shield Competition

R.A. v. LINCOLNS

The programme for to-day's football is mostly confined to the Shield competition in which no less than seven matches have been arranged, three in the Senior four in the Junior section.

In the senior competition the Borderers will replay the Hong Kong Club in the first round, and although held to a draw in their first encounter they should have no difficulty in winning.

The best match of the afternoon, however, will be between the Lincolns and the Royal Artillery. By virtue of their position in the League Championship, the Gunners are, favourites but the Lincolns, although handicapped by the uncertainty of some of their players, may manage to hold them. On the whole a keen and hard fought game should be seen.

South China will engage the Kowloon Football Club on their ground, and although they were beaten by the Borderers in the League encounters last Sunday, they should enter the third round. Kowloon, however, has a way of winning Shield matches, despite their poor position in the League, as was evidenced during the past few years when they entered the semi-final on several occasions.

Of the four matches arranged for the Junior Shield two matches should quite well worth seeing. The Royal Navy will play the China Athletic "A" on the Kowloon Football Club ground, and a keen game should result. The Chinese should start favourites, but the unavoidable changes in the Navy team owing to the movements of the Fleet, may alter the result.

At Sookunpoo, the Borderers should beat the South China "B," while the Lincolns should account for the R.A. at Chatham Road.

The Programme.

The following football matches have been arranged:—
Challenge Shield.—Senior first round replay.—S. W. Borderers v. Hong Kong F.C., Sookunpoo, 4.15 p.m.

Second round.—Lincolns Regt. v. R.A., Chatham Road, 4.15 p.m.
South China v. Kowloon F.C., Caroline Hill, 4.15 p.m.

Junior.—Second Round.—E. Navy v. China Ath. "A," Kowloon F.C. ground, 2.45 p.m.
China Ath. "B" v. R.A.S.C., H.K.F.C. ground, 2.45 p.m.

Lincoln Regt. v. R.A.F., Chatham Road, 2.45 p.m.

S.W. Borderers v. South China "B," Sookunpoo, 2.45 p.m.

Hong Kong League.

Division II. Kick off at 2.45 p.m.

SWIMMING

MEETING OF NEW ASSOCIATION

An informal meeting of the newly-formed Hong Kong International Amateur Swimming Association was held yesterday evening at Lane, Crawford. Mr. E. W. Raiton was in the chair, and there were several representatives of the various swimming clubs present.

The formation of a constitution for the Association was discussed, and an Army representative expressed the opinion that it was useless going further unless they had the assurance that big clubs like the V.R.C. and the Chinese Athletic Association would join the Association. It was therefore decided that these clubs be first approached before anything definite be undertaken.

HOW TO PLAY GOLF

SOME TIPS AND TALES—BY EX-CHAMPION

(Special Air-Mail Service)

London, Feb. 7th.—An old professional once remarked that "golf is an 'unblin' game."

Perhaps it may "unble" a few of our more garrulous amateur golf raconteurs if they read the reminiscences of Francis Ouimet—"A Game of Golf," published by Messrs. Hutchinson (7s. 6d. net).

For Mr. Ouimet is, delightfully modest though he did win the Amateur Golf Championship of the United States in 1913.

Many of his golfing stories are about other people's records and achievements. And who ever heard your amateur week-end player tell stories like that?

For instance, there was the match in 1900 between Don Moss (American) and Bill Stout (English).

Providence!

At the last hole (480 yards) Bill was on the green in two. His second shot stopped three feet from the hole. Moss regarded this as "not golf," but a visitation from Providence!

The thing was said earnestly, meditatively—with melancholy conviction.

How these things are done one doesn't know. One only wonders.

However, Mr. Ouimet tells you that one of the prime requisites of championship play is "a well-rested body and mind."

HOME GOLF NOTES

THE HOME OF GOLF LEGISLATORS

(Special Air-Mail Service)

EDINBURGH, Feb. 7.

Scotland has for so long been known—erroneously, according to the historians—as the home of golf that there is an added interest in the discovery that she is also the home of golf legislators.

The supreme body, the Royal and Ancient Club, have of course, their headquarters at St Andrews, but the leading legislators on the Joint Advisory Council of the British Golf Unions are also closely allied to Scotland. Mr. J. E. Turner, the now chairman of the J.A.C., plays his golf at Gourock, while the presidents of the Irish Union and the Welsh Union the both Scots. If there were such a thing as golfing Home Rule, now would be the time to agitate for it.

FOOTBALLERS v. GOLFERS

The Arsenal footballers, together with Charles Buchanan and W. ("Billy") Blyth, two past members of the team, will oppose the Middlesex golf professionals in a golf match at Hendon on February 15.

It is hoped that later the teams will meet in a football match on the Arsenal ground. The footballers will be asked to concede goals start to the number of holes by which they lose the golf match.

The Arsenal footballers are all experienced golfers, who will not easily be beaten in a match under handicap.

GOLF AT THE "WORLD'S FAIR"

The value of golf as an aid to "big business" is appreciated in the United States. Both the American Open Championship and the Women's Championship are this year being held on courses near Chicago in order to enhance the attractions of the "Century of Progress" Exposition which is being staged there. Mr. Joseph G. Davis, the secretary of the Chicago District Golf Association, who himself hails originally from Woolwich, tells me that one of the features of this World's Exhibition will be a golf information bureau located in the loop (the centre of the city), where visiting golfers will be advised just how and where they can play. Chicago is counting on 200,000 golfers among the visitors to the exhibition.

UNIVERSITY GOLF

Oxford University halved the foursomes—three matches each—with Woking Golf Club, at Woking today, although their side was depleted. K. A. S. Morris played despite a chill. Immediately he finished his foursomes match he went home.

In the leading game T. A. Torrance, the Walker Cup captain, and G. D. Hanna, of the Club, defeated E. H. Moss and J. J. F. Penning by 3 and 2.

Cambridge University gained a lead of six matches to nil on the foursomes in their match with St. George's Hill at Weybridge.

Cambridge included J. O. Wisdom (Selwyn), the 24-year-old Irish golfer. He gave a fine display in partnership with R. H. McGill (Trinity Hall) to defeat J. McGuffie and A. Raworth by 3 and 3.

REMARKABLE ROUND BY ARMY PLAYER

H. B. Rhodes, an assistant at the Wentworth Club, won the Guildford and District Alliance tournament at Bramshot yesterday, with a score of 74, one stroke more than the professional record standing for many years in the name of Vardon.

Six years ago, when a schoolboy at Hallows, near Sheffield, Rhodes played for England in the Boys' International, and fired by the example set by Cotton, took up professional golf as a career.

Rhodes has met with reasonable success, though a major triumph has yet to come his way.

A tall, well-built youth with a touch of Duncan in his style, Rhodes hits the ball crisply and decisively, but he has yet thoroughly to master the short game.

DEATH OF AN ADMIRAL

London, Feb. 7.—Engineer Rear Admiral J. E. Chase, aged 55, died today.

Admiral Chase served at the relief of Ladysmith and in the Boxer rising. He retired in 1906.

RUGBY SEVEN-A-SIDE TOURNAMENT

DRAW FOR WEDNESDAY'S MATCHES

The following is the draw for the Seven-a-Side Rugby Tournament in aid of Charity, which is being played on the Hong Kong Football Club ground on Wednesday, March 8 (preliminary round) and Saturday, March 11 (second round, semi-finals, and finals).

First Round.

H.M.S. Falmouth v. H.M.S. Tamar "B."

Hong Kong F.C. "B" v. H.M.S. Cornwall.

H.M.S. Hermes "A" v. H.M.S. Tamar "A."

Royal Artillery v. H.M.S. Kent "A."

8th Destroyer Flotilla v. H.M.S. Hermes "B."

Hong Kong F.C. "A" v. South Wales Borderers "B."

H.M.S. Suffolk v. H.M.S. Kent "A."

Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank v. Kowloon R.F.C.

The matches in the first round will be played on Wednesday, March 8, on which day play will commence at 4 p.m., the remaining matches being played on Saturday, March 11, 1933—play commencing at 3 p.m.

In the case of units entering more than one "VII" that marked "A" is the first string of the unit in question.

Owing to the large numbers of teams entering, it has been found necessary to provide for an extra round, consisting of two matches, to be played on Monday, March 6, and as the 8th Destroyer Flotilla will be at sea on the Wednesday, their first round game will also be played on the Monday.

ADVERTISING AS TRADE NEED

Sir W. Crawford On A Outlook

HOW TO AID PROBLEM OF DISTRIBUTION

A challenge to business men at home and overseas to respond to the new problems of world distribution was issued by Sir William Crawford, President of the National Advertising Benevolent Society and a member of the Empire Marketing Board.

Sir William was addressing the Publicity Club of London, at the Princes Galleries, on the scope of the great Advertising and Marketing Exhibition which is to be held in July at Olympia, London.

The exhibition, said Sir William who is Chairman of the Organising Committee, would have a threefold appeal—firstly to the manufacturers and producers of Great Britain, secondly to those of the British Empire, and thirdly to those of all the other countries in the world.

"We often hear the cry," he said, "that people are starving in a world of plenty. In some countries wheat is being burnt as fuel; in others millions have not enough to eat. Surely, it is clear from this that what is wrong is our systems of distribution. They are out of date, costly, and uneconomical."

Sir William's recipe was the application of science and research to selling—coupled with the spirit of the merchant adventurers of Elizabethan days.

"Those who study history," he proceeded, "will find that after periods of deepest depression recovery was frequently rapid. To the enterprising, the energetic, and the hard-working success in such times often comes more quickly than in prosperity."

Great Opportunities.

To-day, Sir William said, there were great opportunities of those who were ready to go out and grasp them. New industries were springing up daily, new ideas and new hopes. It was one of the functions of the exhibition to bring home to business folk—that they were curiously unaware of—that people's habits, outlook, and conditions had changed enormously during the last few years.

"The great Exhibition of 1933," he explained, "will aim at providing a positive and practical solution of distribution problems, and will show that advertising is the best way to move goods from producer to consumer at lowest cost. It will show how enterprising firms have increased their turnover and maintained their profits even under present conditions."

Directly and indirectly, Sir William concluded, the exhibition had the support of 90 per cent. of the great business of this country, and over two-thirds of the available space had been already sold. Over a hundred thousand visitors attended the purely national exhibition of 1927, and many times that number would be attracted to this year's exhibition, which would show the benefits of advertising and the advantages enjoyed by "pedigree" goods.

"ARMS AND THE MAN"

RELEASED LAST MONTH IN LONDON

London, Jan. 22.—The first full length screen play from the pen of the world's greatest master of satire, Bernard Shaw—"Arms and the Man"—is to be generally released next week by B.I.P.

Adapted and directed by Cecil Lewis, who was also responsible for bringing to the screen Shaw's "How He Lied to Her Husband," a superb cast of players headed by Barry Jones, Anne Grey, and Maurice Colbourne, put over the scintillating and refreshing Shavian dialogue with a brilliance only to be expected from such renowned artists.

The story, a joyous affair of love and war in the Balkans, unfolds the adventures of Captain Bluntschli, a Swiss officer in the Serbian army who takes refuge from Bulgarian soldiers in a Bulgarian maiden's bedroom—an episode which has unforeseen and hilarious results on the declaration of peace.

Beautiful and unusual backgrounds were secured by Lewis who took his unit and cast to Beddgelert, a little village nestled under the shadow of Snowdon, which, in Shaw's opinion, was the nearest approach to the Balkan countryside, the location of the film.

"Arms and the Man" has been rightly described as a "model of witty, joyous and incisive English—full of sparkle and dramatic suspense" and should not be missed. A strong supporting cast includes Angela Baddeley, Fredrick Lloyd, Marguerite Scudamore and Wallace Everett.

SAFEGWAY STORES

The recent declaration of a 75 cent quarterly dividend payable January 1, 1933, to holders of Safeway Stores common placed these shares on a $3 annual basis, against a $5 rate formerly in effect.It will be recalled that Safeway showed earnings of $2.79 per share in the first six months of 1932, against $2.41 in the corresponding 1931 period. However, it is conceivable that these earnings did not take into account inventory adjustments which may well prove necessary at the year-end and somewhat reduce results for the last half.SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO. AND MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.As an experiment Sears, Roebuck and Co. and Montgomery Ward and Co. shortly will discontinue payment of all postage on orders received by their Minneapolis and St.
Paul houses. The territory served by these houses was selected for the experiment, as its boundaries happened to be exactly the same in the case of both companies. At present, Sears and Ward pay postage in all territories on orders totalling $2 or more. Continuance of the experiment will depend on whether mail order sales in the Twin City territory hold up well enough to furnish additional profit on this business.The crux of the situation which led to the experiment lay in the fact that postage is computed by weight, and not by value, and there has been a great decline in both companies' sale prices since the payment of postage by them was first inaugurated in 1929, while postage rates have been slightly increased since then. In consequence, the burn of the postage cost on the same physical volume of goods as before has been considerably increased in proportion to dollar sales receipts.Sears' mail order sales last year probably ran well over $100,000,000 out of an estimated total sales of about $280,000,000. Ward's mail order sales still form a substantial proportion of its total sales, which probably will run a little under $180,000,000 for 1932.UNION CARBIDE & CARBON CORPORATIONEarnings of this company in 1932
are likely to be moderately below $1 per share or under the annual dividend requirements of $1.20.
Such earnings would compare with $2 per share in 1931 and $3.12 in 1930. In the first nine months of

SILVER MINES IN THE SLUMP

POSITION IN MEXICO.

Methods adopted by mining companies for minimising losses during a period when mining and milling are unremunerative are indicated in the new report of the San Francisco Mines of Mexico. On October 7, 1931, a contract was signed with the company's employees for suspending mining and milling, which was done at the end of December. The company, however, retained "important employees" at reduced salaries, and undertook a road-building programme which the company was able to effect cheaply, while providing employment for "needy workmen" who were "rationed with essential articles of food."
The arrangement was ratified by the Mexico Labour Inspector, and the company expresses appreciation to employees, workmen, and Government officials for their co-operative spirit.1932 the company reported per share earnings of only 69 cents as compared with $1.54 in the similar period of 1931.Due to the lower prices last year and sharply reduced demand, the company's subsidiaries which produce chromium, manganese, silicon, tungsten and vanadium ferro-alloys have suffered, and the net result of manufacturing these products for 1932 may show only a moderate profit and perhaps a loss.In relation to earnings last year the common stock was not greatly deflated. However, the various divisions of the company have excellent growth possibilities over a period of time. The company would benefit particularly by a substantially higher rate of activity in the automotive and steel industries and higher purchasing power in agricultural areas. The common stock is worthy of retention at present levels for longer term possibilities.CORN PRODUCTS REFINING COMPANYThe upturn in the business of the Company from the summer low developed promptly and received considerable acceleration from the rather rapid expansion of sales in certain consumer lines, of which perhaps the most important was the rayon industry. Rayon manufacturers are large users of corn sugar, and the boom in rayon, business in the early fall was a decided stimulant to Corn Products.As matters now stand, the company expects to earn for the final quarter, approximately $2,350,000, equivalent after preferred dividends to the 75-cent dividend requirement on the common stock. In the previous quarter balance reported was $2,311,000, equal to 74 cents a share.
On the basis of $2.09 a share for the first nine months the showing for the full year 1932 will be in the neighbourhood of $2.85 a share, as compared with $3.54 a share in 1931.AMERICAN ORIENTAL FINANCE
